OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"It is, however, a safer choice upon us. It shows much care and great feeling, and cannot fail to be useful. It proves a theme wherein there is much to be done, and we cordially welcome it. . . . The plans which he gives have several merits, and are set forth in drawings to a quarter scale."—Builder, 25 January 26th, 1850.

"We cannot leave the work without giving it our hearty recommendation. It is no light work, but filled with sterling truths; a work that does infinite credit to the talent of the author. 'Architecture,' it is said, 'as a body, are most fond of carving, but where we find them, as their works are usually of a high order.' Anyone may with safety be classed 'Sanitary Reform.'"—Derby Mercury.
